

3. Junior High Diploma

Estilo: Pop-Folk com um violão acústico e percussão leve, no estilo "Pop Atrevido" e irônico.

(Verse 1)

You're cherry-picking lines from every book you've read
Like you're the first one to have a thought inside your head
You try to come off soft-spoken and well-read
But you're just a toddler in a designer bed
You talk about "growth" and your "floor meditation"
While you put us in this fucked-up situation

(Pre-Chorus)

You're good at the falling, but you're scared of the height
Your "epiphanies" are just big words for a small mind, right?
I let your confusion keep me up at night
But baby, your willpower is just a lack of light

(Chorus)

Just because you talk like one doesn't make you a man
You're just playing house the best that you can
Your sugar talking isn't working, it's getting old A little boy in a suit, doing what he's told
You're so dumb and poetic, it's a fetish, it's a crime
Getting your sorry ass out of my life this time

(Verse 2)

You crashed the car and then you ran from the wreckage

Fuck with my head like it's some kind of message
One day you're obsessed, the next you're a stranger
Your sudden "self-restraint" is the real danger
What kind of romantic dark comedy is this nightmare?
You're on a "journey" but you're going nowhere

(Bridge)

I hope you find a whole lot of nothing at the end of the rainbow
Since you love to wander and drift where the wind blows
Go back to your lyrics by Leonard Cohen
And all the empty seeds that you're constantly sowin'
I'm manifestin' that you're oversized in your own head
While I'm finally sleeping in my own damn bed

(Outro)

(Ooh-ooh, ooh-ooh-ooh)
There's nothing left to decode in your silence
It's just immaturity, not mental violence
(A little fade out?)
Yeah, stay in your timezone, baby.
